AWFUL DEPRAVITY SHOWN IN LONDON

LONDON, June 22.—A shocking story illustrative of the evils arising from the overcrowded condition which exists in the poorest quarters of London was shown in the Criminal Court, when Harry Storey, a boy of 15, was placed on trial charged with criminally assaulting his own sister, Sarah, a girl less than 13.

It was shown that the boy's father was living with another woman and that the boy slept with his sister, and the case was made still more repulsive because the boy was found to be suffering with a certain disease which he had communicated to the little girl.

Addressing the boy the judge said: "You have been guilty of a most serious crime and one that calls for severe punishment, but in view of your age I do not think it would do any good to send you to prison. The law permits me to deal with you in a different way, and that is by ordering you whipped, a punishment which I trust will have a beneficial effect and act as a warning to you for the rest of your days. I shall order you to receive twenty strokes of the birch rod."

FRENCH HAVE A LURID IDEA

PARIS, June 22.—The admiring tone with which Ambassador Jusserand speaks of the Republican National Convention, calling it a "Testimonial to the progress of the system of representative government," "Typically American," and "An inspiring spectacle," contrasts strongly with the other reports sent by special correspondents to European papers. These picture Chicago as "a perfect hell," scourged with terrible heat, full of uproar and with street corners occupied by professional sword swallowers, eaters of fine, Indian war dancers and howling Derivishes, especially imported to offer True American hospitality to visitors.

The popular French imagination is treated to affecting pictures of Alice Roosevelt-Longworth, weeping bitterly as her "picturesque" hair falls over her shoulders while her father's name is cheered forty minutes, and of President Roosevelt and Secretary Taft listening with their ears at the telephone in Washington, and rushing off on horseback to reduce the ill effects of the excitement. So far as newspaper reports are concerned, everything has been done to make the convention appear as a sort of political circus.

The nomination of Secretary Taft pleases all classes here. It is felt that his election is highly probable, and that, therefore, the Roosevelt policies will be continued. Regrets are rather generally expressed, however, at the disappearance of Theodore from public life.
